

O'CONNELL KIDNAP RING LIKED UP IN ALBANY KILLINGS

RICH ALBANY MAN PINS HIS ABDUCTION ON 2 OF GANG

U. S. Agents Join Hunt for $40,000 in Ransom; Leaders Are Held in Murders and Big Holdups

New York, Sept. 21 (INS)—Confident the abduction of John J. O'Connell, Jr., would be "a closed case" by tonight police and federal agents today swept toward a clean-up of one of the nation's most notorious kidnappings, a series of murders and bank robberies and the climax of a crushing blow delivered in the government's campaign of extermination of kidnap-racketeers.

O'Connell, son of a politically powerful Albany family, was viewed again in the police lineup five men and two women seized in swift raids in the Bronx section here and at Mt. Kisco, N. Y. Authorities were confident O'Connell, abducted from in front of his home July 7 and held captive three weeks until his family paid $40,000 ransom, would elicit his partial identification of two of the men—Leonard Scarinci, 27, and Anthony Reimo, 25, late today.

"They took him two of the men I saw when I was snatched," O'Connell told police when he was rushed here to look the suspects over.

HELD IN 11 MURDERS
"But it's tough to send a man away for 30 years when you aren't sure, I am positive these two are the fellows."

Later O'Connell told newspapermen he was sure Scarinci and Reimo were members of the band which held him. But he declined formally to make the identification stick. The two have confessed murders, police said.

Police and federal investigators, who had trailed the gang uneasily since the night O'Connell was "snatched," felt the young National Guard lieutenant would make the identification positive after the first shock of seeing them had passed.

Meanwhile, Scarinci and Reimo were booked on charges of homicide and robbery in connection with half a dozen bank robberies, and the slaying of at least five men, alleged former gang confederates.

The others, Philip Ziegler, Charles Herzig, alias "Doc," and Fred Plant, were held on robbery charges. The women, Eleanor Scarinci, wife of Scarinci, and Emma Reimo, described as Reimo's wife, were held on charges of acting in concert with a probability the charge would be changed to "Bulfinch law violation because of discovery of a variable amount in Scarinci's Mt. Kisco home where the women were arrested."

IDENT'S RANSOM
While police awaited O'Connell's second inspection of the prisoners, federal agents who had worked tirelessly on the kidnapping case swung into renewed action.

They spread over the city, hunting a bank of banks where the $40,000 ransom paid for O'Connell, or part of it, may have been deposited and began a check-back of recent activities of the gang.

In Albany, meanwhile, bench warrants charging Scarinci and Reimo formally with kidnapping O'Connell were sworn out by Dist. Atty. Delaney.

Delaney expressed conviction that Manny Stewi, indicted as the actual kidnaper, was "the brains of the case."

Delaney said police were seeking John O'Leary, former beer-tavern partner of Stewi, and two other Albany gangsters.

On the basis of the confession, police said the murders of William Poffo and James Parkin, former partners of the same gang, the killing of John and Louis Albino at a Connecticut filling station would be cleared up.

ADMITS FOUR MURDERS
Scarinci, admitting participation in the murders and half a dozen bank holdups, according to the police statements, refused to talk about the O'Connell case.

"You've got me for four murders," he snarled, "what more do you want?"

Ar police outlined the confession, Poffo and Parkin were slain shortly after a holdup of the Bessborough bank on June 15 in which a detective was killed.

There was a quarrel over division of the loot, police said, and Poffo and Parkin were lured from the gang behind them, trailed to a point near Harrison, N. Y., and murdered.

"We talked them," Scarinci's confession was said to read, "in a tavern in the Albany Post road and then we killed them."

Police then questioned the pair about the Albino shooting and again, detectives said, Scarinci admitted a slaying.

THEY DIDN'T GET THEIR HANDS UP QUICK ENOUGH," he said, describing a holdup of the filling station, "and we shot them."

Convicted Callegio and Reimo were members of the gang participating in the Bessborough Bank strikeup, police charged Scarinci and Reimo with that murder also. Bodies of the two were found partly submerged in a ditch not far from the point where Poffo and Parkin met death.

According to Capt. Richard Oliver, head of the undercover squad which has "spotted" every move of the gang for weeks, the band was responsible for at least five other New York bank holdups, loot from which totaled at least $200,000.

SEVEN IN ROUNDUP

In a series of raids in the Bronx, Brooklyn and Mount Kisco, N. Y., police rounded up five men and two women as members of the crew which kidnapped Lt. John J. O'Connell in Albany July 7 and held him three weeks until $42,500 ransom had been paid.

Washington, Sept. 21 (AP)—Now and powerful forces today joined the pressure of popular demand upon the White House to hasten such reflection. Outstanding developments were:

Rep. Henry B. Steagall (D.) of Alabama, chairman of the powerful House banking and currency committee, declared himself unopposed in favor of currency expansion.

Senator Elmer Thomas (D.) of Oklahoma announced plans for a reflection mass meeting to be called within 10 days in that state.

President Roosevelt has not taken definite reflectionary action.

The President said he would see a Southern committee advocating $100,000,000 currency reduction in its turn, when he returns to his office.

"Convict Without Wit" Outwits Guards, Flees
Norfolk, Sept. 21 (INS)—A youth pronounced by state officials as "without imagination" was the object of a wide search today, following his daring break from Norfolk State Prison colony, while a majority of the guards were engaged in a farewell party for a white convict.

He is Francis Moriarty, 37, of Brookline, one of two long-term prisoners who fled. The prison colony said a half of shots from a guard. The second prisoner, John C. McRae, 23, of Brookline, was recaptured a short time after the break when he stumbled upon guards.

Moriarty, alias Francis Joyce, who, officials said, they believed was wounded by a bullet fired by the guard, was released and in the midst of the plot to break for freedom. Pronounced by state officials as "without wit," Moriarty fled the break when most of the guards were giving a "send-off" to McRae.

KIDNAPSUSPECT ALSO LINKED IN RUTSTEIN CASE

Postal Agents Sought Scarinci in a Local Abduction Plot

Leonard Scarinci, held in New York for murders and bank robberies and for suspected participation in the O'Connell kidnapping, is believed by postal inspectors to have been concerned in the Herman Rutstein kidnapping here, it was revealed today.

Four men are serving sentences ranging from 17 years at state prison to 10 years at state prison in a Rutstein case. A Rochester man, was taken in a house in Nantasket and held prisoner while the gang demanded $40,000 ransom from his wealthy brother. Police rescued him.

Postal office inspectors have a photograph of Scarinci with Max Schechter, one of those arrested and imprisoned in the Rutstein case. Scarinci could not be found, however, for questioning in that crime.

The kidnapping was effected with all the finesse of skilled operators and from the start was branded as the work of a gang directed by figures from the New York underworld.

Rutstein was watched for days from an apartment near his home on Rinsley st., Rochester. Plans were carefully made. Rutstein's daily routine was thoroughly known.

He was ambushed as he arrived home in his car and was taken to Nantasket, where he was kept blindfolded and tied hand and foot. When they took off his blindfold so that he could see to feet, they slung him back into the car.

He was brought up in Springfield and is the son of Louis Scarinci, who died at Rutland prison camp. He was known in Springfield as "Nail."

Curley Drops Hint of New Position
Washington, Sept. 21—Mayor Curley does not intend to drop out of public life when his successor is elected. He told Washington correspondents that he "might be a candidate for some office, when he left the White House in high spirits yesterday afternoon."

After denying that his visit to Pres. Roosevelt was politically significant, the mayor began a round of calls on administration leaders. Postmaster-General Farley was on his itinerary.

He indicated his intention to remain in the public eye in the following statement:

"I presented my applications for federal patronage to James Roosevelt three months ago and washed my hands of the whole affair. As mayor of Boston I have the distribution of about 20,000 jobs so I have nothing to worry about."

"Moreover, I am not a candidate for re-election—at least until my term is ended. I may be a candidate for some office then."

Refusal to discuss his aspirations further, Curley turned his attention to the open room for his conversation with the President. He claimed that his visit was concerned with obtaining federal funds for the $2,500,000 subway extension in Boston.

GREEN BATTLES MERIT CLAUSE SHOE CODE
Manufacturers Want Protection for All Employees

Washington, Sept. 21 (AP)—William Green, president of American Federation of Labor, said today the labor advisory board of the recovery administration would refuse to approve the code of competition for the boot and shoe industry unless the merit clause was stricken out.

The shoe code, revised to meet objections, was submitted to recovery heads with the controversial merit clause left intact. The code has been sent to the industrial and labor boards and to the NRA legal division for approval before being submitted to Administrator Johnson.

"I am uncompromisingly opposed to anything like that," Green said, "I shall oppose any additions to the plain language of the labor section of the recovery act. I am sure the labor board will not approve any code which contains the merit clause or any other interpretive language."

The labor clause, which asserts the right of employees to hire and fire without regard for union affiliation, has been demanded by the shoe manufacturers on the grounds that the labor clause of the National Recovery Act presented the rights of employees but failed to assert the rights of employers.

A plan designed to give relief of the nation from destructive price wars without committing the NRA to a policy of price-fixing was being prepared today by secretaries of the consumers advisory board for submission to Administrator Johnson.

With members of the consumers board visibly disturbed because the retail code was submitted to the board, the new plan presented a definite issue which may be decided by Johnson or may go to President Roosevelt.

BRITISH PEER LAUDS HEARST PLAN

Sir Walter Layton Points Out How Inflation Would Affect Nation; Says Change Won't Be Easy

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

UNIVERSAL SERVICE SPECIAL CABLE

London, Sept. 21.—If the United States is going to have inflation, then the method suggested by William Randolph Hearst is the way to do it.

This comment was made today by Sir Walter Thomas Layton, financial adviser to the British government, director of the League of Nations economic section and editor of the London Economist, in a discussion of Mr. Hearst's national broadcast Saturday on "Inflation, Deflation and Reflation." Sir Walter continued:

HAIR NOT EASY

"But America must judge for herself whether it is possible to control and check inflation or, as Mr. Hearst puts it, 'as prosperity returns and the amount of deposit currency increases, governmental currency can be decreased by retiring government notes, thus preventing over-inflation.'"

"Experience shows this is not easy. Other countries which tried inflation did not succeed in stopping inflation when they wanted. The United States must judge whether it thinks it really can do so."

"The real problem is: Can you, by taking out increased purchasing power by an issue of notes, create such an impetus or a rolling snowball, as it were, that will restore normal prosperity?"

"In 1928, the national income of the United States was around $60 billions of dollars. This represented the total spending power of the country."

INCOME CUT IN HALF

"This has now dropped to about $30 billions of dollars. How can you get normal prosperity back? The equivalent of $30 billions of dollars."

"This does not mean that you have $30 billions of dollars in circulation at one time. The circulation medium is actually considerably less, and this amount going round and round brings the total to $30 billions or whatever the national income is."

"Now, suppose notes are issued as suggested by Mr. Hearst, to the tune, say, of three or four billions of dollars. Will this three or four billions create such a snowball as to enable $60 billions of dollars worth of business eventually to be transacted?"

"What you do is print notes and hand them to somebody. This will increase purchasing power. But how much effect it will have depends upon a great variety of circumstances. Is the money being placed in the right hands?"

"It is essential, of course, for the unemployed to have greater purchasing power. But with that alone restore the house building, factory and farming activity to the 1928 level?"

"And if this three billion fails to do the trick—what then? Will another three billion be tried?"

"My opinion is that unless you get the purchasing power into the hands of foreign merchants of cotton and wheat, you will not restore the balance of production American activity."

"Prices will be increased by inflation. But the essence is not merely to buy prices—especially a speculative increase in prices—that is not lasting."

"The claim may be made that inflation puts money in the hands of the farmer and is therefore helpful. But to get the best rolling this is not enough, for the farmer is not helped if there is only speculative buying of wheat. That is not based on ability to sell more wheat abroad, which is fundamentally the only sound basis to restore normal American activity."

"I believe that in the long run, hope for America depends upon underlying improvement in the world situation. For with an improved world situation, export buying power is improved. This normal buying power is necessary for the United States in connection with internal inflation intended to adjust internal buying power."

AMERICAN-STRAW BALLOTS WAY TO BOSTON VOTERS

Postcards Being Mailed Out at Rate of 10,000 a Day for Electorate to Give Their Choice for Mayor

The Straw Ballot Test Election for Mayor of Boston is under way.

The secret postcard Straw Ballots are being mailed to the registered Democratic voters of Boston at the rate of 10,000 per day. First returns will be announced in a day or two.

By these ballots, the voters are deciding for themselves the interesting and important question: "Who is the strongest Democratic candidate for mayor of Boston?"

They are answering the question which interests themselves and concerns the future of the great Metropolis of the North-east. The returns will be published as they are received, daily in the Boston Evening American and on Sundays in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

The voter can mark his secret postcard ballot opposite the name of any candidate for Mayor of Boston. He can write in name.

On the Democratic candidate in the blank space which appears at the bottom of the ballot.

He thus can write the name of any candidate whose name does not appear upon the printed list of any person he favors for the mayoralty, whether that person is an active candidate or not.

The voter is asked to mark his ballot promptly, to tear off that half of the postcard on which he has voted and to drop it into the postbox at his own risk.

The names of candidates appear on the ballot in this alphabetical order: PAUL A. COLLINS, JOHN J. CONNORS, WILLIAM J. FOLEY, THOMAS S. GANN, WESLEY D. HAMILTON, FREDERICK W. HENSTREE, THOMAS C. ORRIN, JOSEPH F. O'DONNELL, MICHAEL M. SULLIVAN, JOSEPH A. TOMASELLO.

Others, who have since entered and whose names will be written in on a special list for late entries are: WILLIAM ARTHUR REILEY, chairman of the Boston school committee; DANIEL H. COAKLEY.

The name of either may be written on the ballot, if the preference of the voter, or of any other person who commands the voter's preference.

Collins for High Pay, Low Taxes, Balanced Budget

(In response to the Boston Evening American's invitation to candidates for Mayor of Boston to present their reasons for public support, Paul A. Collins has submitted the following article. Mr. Collins was born in South Boston, is the son of the late Mayor Patrick A. Collins, was graduated from Harvard in 1902 and served as an officer in the Signal Corps, A. E. F. He is a consultant engineer and economist, is married, resides in Brighton, with offices at 80 Federal st.)

BY PAUL A. COLLINS
Candidate for Mayor of Boston

I am convinced that many of the voters would welcome a candidate hitherto not active in politics, one who is interested that every business man or individual shall have an equal right to do business with the city. I will cooperate in every way with the efforts of Boston business to increase employment and bring new and profitable business to this city. Having served in the A. E. F. during the World War, the very grave problems would receive that quick attention and attention which they deserve.

RENS AS A DEMOCRAT
As a Democrat, I seek only the endorsement of those who believe in Democratic principles. This great party has always placed man first before any other things. By birth and tradition, I inherit the very core of the Democratic party's principles, and as a Democrat I will run for mayor, although I should the right by the present city government to place my party designation upon the city ballot.

This city which gave Townsend, Smith, Eliot and Walsh a clear majority of 10,000 Democratic votes in its daily habit to elect a Democrat for mayor.

My aspiration for 40 years with rugged honesty both in business and in politics is a guarantee to every citizen of Boston that their rights will be faithfully maintained and guarded.

BOOKS—And Other Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

We have recently decided to begin at the far end of the lane, as remote from criticism as we can be. They work our way toward our audience, passing by them rather thoughtfully, or pretending to be so, in our job that we really do not know they are there. But the instant the first clip-clop is heard a voice cries out:

"Why don't you begin at this end? It's the very place to start." Now again is given at no matter which end of a lane it lifts its little green fingers, so whether one ends here first or there first is of no moment. Yet there follows a real argument on this point, it's decided here. "A lot of that made no difference! But it does, you should move a few steps how until after sundown." "Non-sense!"

You begin at the shady end. "Why don't you go cross-crocs?" says that other voice, coming out of the woods after bidding one your old bottle of beer in his hand. "I'm doing this not you, you hear you're seeing, bromidiolically." "I was only trying to help you," answers Tony, pretending to gulp as he says it. . . .

A long interval of silent mowing. You are really awfully warm, and you are really awfully cold and funny people. But nothing in the world could induce you to pause. You hope the beads of perspiration on your brow are not too apparent, and you wish you didn't have to move an inch to your audience, just like a horse at the circus.

"Oh, but you skipped a place!" your dear cousin cries out when you are nearly done. "Right there." And she comes out dragging a strip as wide as your hand which she says is a new idea. Doubtless, your fatigue. It is like the space in your audience, just like a horse at the circus, which everyone can see except the cleaner himself. You retreat.

NAZI LEADERS ORDER SCREEN STARS HOME

Hollywood, Sept. 21 (U.S.)—Over Hollywood today loomed the threatening shadow of the Nazi Swastika. A report from Berlin spread consternation in the ranks of film producers, and among high-salaried German actors, actresses, directors and technicians here.

CULTURAL RENAISSANCE
The amazing news, affecting Marlene Dietrich, Dorothy Weick, Ernst Lubitsch, and many other Hollywood celebrities who are German citizens, was this:
"Pure Aryans" German film stars will be ordered to return to Germany to participate in the "cultural renaissance" of the nation, ordered by Chancellor Adolph Hitler.

The "return to Germany" order, according to word reaching here today, now is being discussed in the film Reichsfachschaft, the controlling motion picture organization in the Vaterland.
If the film organization's plans are allowed to mature—and Hitler is said to be favorable to them—those who fail to heed the stern command to return immediately will be disciplined and barred from German films. They will, in effect, lay themselves open to Nazi reprisals.

NON-JEWISH STARS AFFECTED
It is planned to apply the order to all non-Jewish German stars, regardless of when they left the country; but the command will apply particularly in the case of those who left Germany after Hitler and his Nazis came into power. Artists who refuse, they will be classed as "non-Aryans."

What was construed as a defile in the Reichsfachschaft was hurried tonight by Miss Weick, the beautiful heroine of "Mädchen in Uniform," whose brilliant performance in the Hollywood production was a triumph.

Before I left Germany," said Miss Weick, "I obligated myself to remain in Hollywood for a definite term of five years."
That was a business contract, made between a buyer and a seller. That contract would have to be taken into account by any German governmental agency before it considered requesting my return.

Miss Dietrich sailed from Havre, France, today on the first leg of her return to Hollywood from a tour abroad.

Studio officials regarded it as significant that Miss Dietrich, although she is a German citizen, did not visit Germany on her European trip this year. Instead, she passed most of her time in Paris.

WIFE OF BANKER DEERY

Court Rebuke to Donnell, Mrs. Deery's Counsel

Salem, Sept. 21—Smiles which John A. Deery, palmed head of the defunct Salem Trust Co., and his wife, Elizabeth A. Deery, wore to court for the early stages of the trial of Bank Commissioner J. J. Donnell against Mrs. Deery were gone today.

They sat aside from others in the courtroom grimly listening to the arguments of lawyers as the judge, Judge Thomas J. Hammond, decided whether Mrs. Deery must pay something more than $15,000 in the closed bank on a note which she signed.

Both showed chagrin as her lawyer, R. Howard Donnell, drew the fire of Judge Hammond. Donnell had been attempting to discredit evidence of a stock transaction between Deery and Hornblower & Weeks, Boston brokers, as a result of which Mrs. Deery is alleged to have borrowed $30,000 from the Salem Trust Co. so that her husband might meet his obligations. In commenting on two affidavits from the mortgagee, Donnell said that he believed one of them to be a forgery.

"What your personal opinion is is of no importance," broke in Judge Hammond, "and you have no right to give them. A man of your experience knows this, and it is unfair, Mr. Donnell."

Donnell's argument, briefly, was that Mrs. Deery had signed the $30,000 note to accommodate the bank and that she had received none of the money. Further, he said she had been assured that there would be no liability on her part.

Noel Lennard, acting for the state banking commissioner, concluded his case by pointing out that Deery was faced with the necessity of making a $35,000 payment to Hornblower & Weeks on February 10, 1929, when he had but $346 in his bank account.

Whipping Urged by Hartford Judge
Hartford, Ct., Sept. 21—A sound whipping at the post as punishment for certain crimes was recommended in Superior Criminal Court by Judge Alfred C. Baldwin and State's Atty. Hugh M. Alden.

Alden suggested such punishment during a hearing on the case of William Ragsdale of Hartford, who pleaded guilty to an assault on his wife.

Six Hurt as Auto Plunges 50 Feet
Worcester, Sept. 21—Six persons were injured, probably fatally, in Leicester here when the large sedan in which they were riding skidded on wet pavement on a steep grade, plunged down a 50 foot bank, turned over four times, and was completely wrecked.

Spill to New York
New York, Sept. 21—A large oil tanker, the S.S. "Salem," was reported to have spilled a large quantity of oil into the harbor of New York.

subway system, while Russia has actually built one. How do you explain that?

"Can it be that there is really something in letting the government run things?" Some will say yes, since we all rely on the success of the state.

Idaho and New Mexico regulate prohibition, making 31 states wet, not one voting dry. Five more states and there will be an end of the "mole experiment" that has cost the United States tens of billions in crime, fastened on industry and bathtub gin on the national bill of fare.

BOSTON SOCIAL AID TO WED

Springfield, Sept. 21 (AP)—The wedding of Miss Esther G. Ward, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edwin St. John Ward of Worcester, to a son of a minister in Springfield, was held at the Rev. William M. Easton, formerly of Springfield, Pa., will take place in the First Church in Springfield, Oct. 17.

Miss Ward, a Mt. Holyoke college graduate, has been engaged in social service work in Boston and chose the Longmeadow church for her wedding because it was from here her mother went to Springfield as the bride of Dr. Ward.

The Rev. Mr. Easton, graduate of Yale and Union Theological Seminary, will take his bride to Saxtons River, Vt., where he will begin his first pastorate.

—Speed a Dollar and Make a Job—

In the suit of Bank Commr. Arthur Guy against Mrs. Elizabeth Deery, wife of John Deery, jailed president of the defunct Salem Trust Co., it was revealed that Deery had permitted his wife to use stock as collateral for a loan with which to pay for that very stock. This was unraveled from witnesses before Judge Hammond in Salem Court. Mrs. Deery is shown as she left the court house in Salem. At the left is James J. Phelan, of Hornblower & Weeks, Mr. Phelan is scheduled as a witness, for in testimony given by Deery, he told about discussing his wife's loan with Mr. Phelan.

Medford Zone Law Upheld in Locatelli Action

Medford's zoning laws are upheld under a decision handed down by Judge John M. Gibbs on the action brought by John Locatelli against the city of Medford seeking $35,000 damages for refusal of the city to permit operation of a gas station on the Mystic Valley parkway. City Solicitor Lewis H. Peters asked for a directed verdict for the city and Judge Gibbs stated he would allow the case to go to the jury inasmuch as a possible amount of damages in case of an appeal.

Locatelli secured his original permit before passage of the zoning laws but allowed it to lapse. After the passage of zoning laws he asked a renewal of his permit on the property which was then in a residential district. He built a filling station but was refused a permit to operate it. He brought suit, claiming the zoning laws had been illegally adopted by the city.

SECOND THREAT OF DEATH IN URSCHEL CASE

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 21.—A melodramatic touch was given to the Charles F. Urschel kidnapping trial today when Fred Coleman, 30-year-old son of T. M. Coleman, a 72-year-old farmer of Bradford, Okla., marched into court, with his father, and pleaded with Judge C. G. G. Vaughn to be allowed to talk five minutes.

"I want to speak for five minutes of my life," he declared, "and I want to tell you that I am the most important five minutes of my life." Urschel, who had refused the request and ordered him taken into custody, said Coleman was a fugitive because he wanted for the kidnapping, the Coleman dramatic appearance created a sensation.

The elder Coleman, on the stand the other day, told how Kelly had snatched his place prior to the abduction. Urschel's associates expressed the opinion that he understood friends of Kelly and Kelly himself are trying to intimidate witnesses.

Several persons are on trial, including the notorious desperadoes and killers, Harvey J. Karpis, Alvin Karpis, and the defendants in Kelly's mother-in-law, Mrs. R. C. Shannon of Pasadena, Texas, at whose farm Urschel was after he was "kidnaped."

EVERY MOVE REVEALED
Gus T. Jones, 11, 8-year-old, testified Urschel related "every move" that had been made from the time he was kidnapped. From that, I would expect every known angle and where he was located, where he was held. Jones then detailed the raid on the Shannon farm where Kelly was captured.

"Kelly was asleep on a bed in the yard. We took him up with a machine gun," Jones said. "I said, 'Well, it's too bad, Harvey. If your head bobs up here, I'm going to kill you.' I told the men to search that bed, I saw what I took to be the barrel of a gun."

One Car -- Double Trouble

Although it was only one car that plunged into the Charles F. Memorial Drive, Cambridge, early today, the perfect reflection in the water makes it seem like two cars, but it's double trouble for the driver, James J. Barry of Allston, who not only was rescued from the river, but faced court after he was resuscitated. (Boston American photo.)

Jewry Fills Synagogues for New Year Greeting
Jews throughout the world were deep today in observance of the Jewish New Year, Rosh Hashanah, the solemn observance in continuous until sundown tomorrow.

In Greater Boston synagogues and temples the usually somber and reading desk have been changed to white, and the rabbis and cantors in all orthodox synagogues were robes of white during the round of services.

Recent crowds, which attended the opening services in the temples last night at sundown in the New Year, were duplicated today, and there will be services tonight and through tomorrow. There are also being held New Year services in all the institutions maintained by the Association of Jewish Synagogues, with special services likewise provided by this organization for those in its care.

In a New Year greeting, the Council of Orthodox Rabbis of Massachusetts extended today their Jewish for the coming year, and Jews of the world, but in members of all faiths. The message will be the year's lowest price, and the higher price effective October 1st. Come in and see the complete line—learn how much you can save on the model you want by buying now.

PRICES OF GENERAL ELECTRIC FLAT TOP REFRIGERATORS WILL ADVANCE OCTOBER 1st

ON October 1st higher prices go into effect on General Electric flat top model refrigerators. Buy now and save the difference. We have been expecting this increase—no new present low prices could not longer be maintained for the high quality guaranteed by General Electric. G-E refrigerators offer more for each dollar invested than any refrigerator on the market—all steel cabinets, stainless steel freezers, chambers, porcelain interiors, semi-automatic temperature control with G-E defroster, and General Electric dependability and long life. They freeze more ice faster, preserve food longer, and give you less current cost and have smaller reserve capacity for unusual demands.

Buy your G-E refrigerator now! Save the extra dollars this price increase means. Today's prices and terms on both flat-top and Monitor Top models are the lowest in history—lower than they probably ever will be again. A small down payment now places a G-E in your kitchen tomorrow—no more saving in your home expenses that will more than meet the easy monthly payments. Buy at today's lowest price, don't wait and pay the higher price effective October 1st. Come in and see the complete line—learn how much you can save on the model you want by buying now.

Jean Harlow Owes Screen Career to Platonic Hubby Bern

She Collected Her Big Dividends in Brain, Brawn Exchange

(With youth, beauty and fame, Jean Harlow mates again with middle-age. Will her marriage to the cameraman, Rosson, take? This is the fourth sketch on Hollywood's platinum blonde—her loves, her (see her career.)

Watchers viewed Jean Harlow as a neophyte in the lona of the higher life. In those quiet days of "all work and little play" after her divorce from Husband No. 1, McGrew, Paul Bern was her Plato. Bern's smallest observations were gospel. No wonder, Bern's grip on his position was firm. He brought a background of a Columbia professorship, a newspaper term, two degrees, artistic appreciation and—although his death was necessary to lure out a frail and lovely ghost of his amorous experience with women.

Hein's studio—and returned excited, happy and eager to go to work.

It was a simple and in view of the debt she owed that platinum crop of hair, almost ungrateful explanation of her joy.

"I've a chance to be a girl with a new idea," Jean Harlow exclaimed happily. So she, Miss Katherine Brush of Roatan had written a best-seller called "Red-Headed Woman," a Golden Hollywood beauty had tried for years to Harlow had not been considered. How could the original and world-famous blonde be a redhead? But now and gently volunteered the suggestion at a casting conference.

Jean reached stardom. The picture "Red-Headed Woman" was a shock-off Jean Harlow's consciousness to that white-gold flowing glory to which many believed she

TALENT CLIPS TREASURES
It was sort of a daring stroke at the time. This girl, experienced in half a dozen pictures only, had been Delilah to herself. But the strength of her tremendous appeal was increased, not lessened. White-gold talent shone instead of platinum hair.

Paul Bern studiously avoided interference with the making of Jean's first picture on the M-G-M lot, but through it's making, the two were together whenever pos-

They found they were in love. Within a few months of "Red-headed Woman," they were engaged. On July 2, 1932, they were married. Not an elopement. They were married in home of Jean's mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Marino Bella.

Bern's wedding gift was a beautiful home, worth $50,000, overlooking Hollywood in the hills. They were married as Jean was about to start another picture. "Re-

"Dearest David! Unfortunately this is the only way to make good myself—my wrongs—to tell you, and to wipe out my abject humiliation. You understand!
I will give you a comedy done

A doctor hinted he had a pathological explanation for his wife's behavior. "The woman," Miller said, had been Miss Paul Rehn for 10 years in New York, leaped in her arms, and she had never known the hands Miss Rehn had so com-

"BUY IN SEPTEMBER AND BUY AMERICAN"

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN New England's Greatest Evening Newspaper THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1934

This is the twelfth illustrated editorial—of a series now appearing in the Hearst Newspapers—on the importance of the Buy Now movement as a contribution to National Recovery.
★

"I bought a New Car
AND I'M PROUD OF IT!"

TODAY putting your name on the "dotted line" is a PATRIOTIC ACT!

THE MAN IN THIS PICTURE has just bought a new car. A year ago his friends might have frowned on him as "extravagant" ... "wasteful" ... "putting on a show." He might have been called a spendthrift. Today he throws out his chest and says, "I'm proud of it!"

It's an interesting change in psychology!

Today, it has become sort of fashionable to buy the things you need and can afford.

Buying a new car brings cheerful news to lots of people. Before the ink is dry on the order, its effects are felt all over the land.

The miner feels it down in his pit. The steel puddler knows it. Men who make tires — and upholstery — and glass—all have a little more work to do.

Even the merchant who takes your order is better able to meet his increased costs. He's signed the code requiring shorter hours, higher wages—and the money he makes from you helps him in maintaining the larger sales force.

Don't you see how it works? How really simple it all is? Your buying helps lots of people—including yourself!

Manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers by the thousand have subscribed to the various codes of the NRA.

They have added men—shortened hours — burdened themselves with additional overhead. They have done this at the request of our President—to aid in Recovery.

Many of them—particularly the smaller ones—can ill afford to make this outlay. They have made no preparations for it. Conditions of the past two years have been too difficult.

Now, to break even—to keep on employing people at higher wages and shorter hours—they must have orders for their goods from the public. Not later — when times get better — but now — this month — today!

• • • • •
The untapped savings of this country total more than eleven billion dollars. A small part of that sum, spent sensibly for things people need, will keep all the re-employed men at work. And every man at work helps keep up the demand for goods; helps make your own job more secure.

Without jeopardizing your future—without drawing on reserves — you can help by spending. Not extravagant spending. But sound sensible buying of things you need and can use.

Perhaps you need a new automobile. Buy one if you can afford it. And remember, there are thousands of smaller purchases, too, that will help recovery.

New linens, new rugs, new furniture. New paint for the house, new paper for its walls. New clothes for the family.

It isn't how much you spend that is the test—it's the buying. Will you do your part? Just start spending normally. And start NOW—in September.

Buy in September. Buy anything and everything you need and can afford. Buy in September—not just the things you've been needing—but the things you know will be needed and used later.

That's the way to help the President's plan for speeding up Recovery.

BUY IN SEPTEMBER — BUY AMERICAN !

Life
By ROBERT E. ROGERS

It is of no particular consequence I suppose that one American has renounced his citizenship in order to become an Italian citizen. Against him we can set some millions of Italians who have become American citizens through choice, some of them even since 1922 when Fascism first became a world power.

But the antecedents of this gentleman make an interesting aspect of the case. The man is George Nelson Page, a descendant of Thomas Nelson, who signed the Declaration of Independence, and the grandson of Capt. Thomas Jefferson Page, who resigned from the naval service of the United States in 1863 to command a Confederate cruiser. Obviously he comes from good stock.

There is one explanation for his change of nationality which is perfectly reasonable and natural. His grandfather never accepted the reconstructed South nor the flag which he had fought for. After the Civil War he lived and worked in Italy. His son, George Page's father, married an Italian woman, and also spent his life in Italy. A cousin, Thomas Nelson Page, the novelist, was ambassador to Italy under Wilson.

George Nelson was brought up in Italy and, though he tried working in the United States, he did not feel at home here. All his natural loyalties were to the Italian civilization. He married an American girl, who, too, loved the Italian civilization.

Psychologically, then, the thing is perfectly understandable. Was he encouraged to leave by the fact that his children were born in America? He probably feels about America much as an American-born Italian feels about Italy. The matter of heredity, however, never enters into it.

I do not know how much emphasis the scientists of today put on heredity compared with environment. In this case they would probably say that environment has conquered. It is possible that heredity has played a part in the decision.

This young man, a great-grandfathered renouncer of an old allegiance for a new as a matter of fact, he renounced the rights of citizenship which he had acquired in the 18th century, for the principle of democracy. Presumably he fought for that principle, as well his grandfather, the naval officer, renounced an old allegiance for a new as a matter of principle.

One young man is so impressed by Fascism as a political philosophy that he realizes that to prove it is not enough. One must be obedient to it even in fighting it. It is not enough to be a free thinker. One must be a free thinker. One must be a free thinker. One must be a free thinker.

But what he overlooks, I am afraid, is that the moment that he leaves the United States for Fascism, because we are too free and undisciplined in precise by the moment in which we set ourselves to the task of exchanging freedom for discipline and control from above. Saugus Agrees To Land Trade MEASURE
36 School Children Shift To Wakefield After Months of Delay

After months of delay, Saugus schoolmen have at last signed the bill for annexation of a small section of Saugus to Wakefield. The approved measure, carrying the signatures of both Wakefield and Saugus officials, has been forwarded to the State House.

By an ironic twist of fate, Saugus, which had been a small town, became a part of Wakefield. The town of Saugus, which had been a small town, became a part of Wakefield. The town of Saugus, which had been a small town, became a part of Wakefield.

DANIEL J. LYNE PICKED TO RUN THE ESTATE

Jury Issues Are to Be Fromed Within the Next 10 Days

The estate of Martin J. Lomanevich, famous Wall End political boss, who died last month, was placed temporarily under control of Daniel J. Lyne as special administrator today, because of the will contest, which Joseph Lomanevich, brother of the deceased, has started.

In Joseph and Emma, who were left $200,000 in cash, a $200,000 annuity will be paid to her. The will is being contested by Joseph Lomanevich, brother of the deceased, who was a prominent politician.

PRELIMINARY IN FIGHT
The will came before Judge Arthur Dolan in Suffolk probate court today.

Five Dollar Prize Recipe for Thursday

MRS. FRANK E. MAINARD

WHITE CAKE WITH CHOCOLATE MARSHMALLOW ICING
 This cake is a variation of a cake commonly used for wedding cakes. It is a light, moist cake with a delicate flavor. The chocolate marshmallow icing is a rich, creamy topping that adds a touch of elegance to the cake. The cake is best served with a dusting of powdered sugar and a garnish of fresh flowers.

Heat $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter in a cream, gradually beat in 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup milk and 2 cups of flour sifted with 3 teaspoons baking powder. Lastly, beat in the whites of 3 eggs, beaten dry. Bake in a 11-1167 R2 7 inch pan. Cover with chocolate marshmallow icing.

Icing:

Cut $\frac{1}{2}$ pound of marshmallows into three pieces each and arrange side by side on the hot cake. Melt $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter and 3 squares of chocolate in a dub over hot water. Stir in 3 cups of sifted marshmallows.

freemakers sugar, add gradually 4 tablespoons strong black coffee and 1 teaspoon vanilla extract. Spread over the marshmallows on the cake and bake them completely. Do not cover the cake and marshmallows with the frosting until the cake is cold.

WATEST MARKETS

Investment Bankers to Have Part in
U. S. Recovery

By FRANK H. MELDON
Financial Editor, Boston American

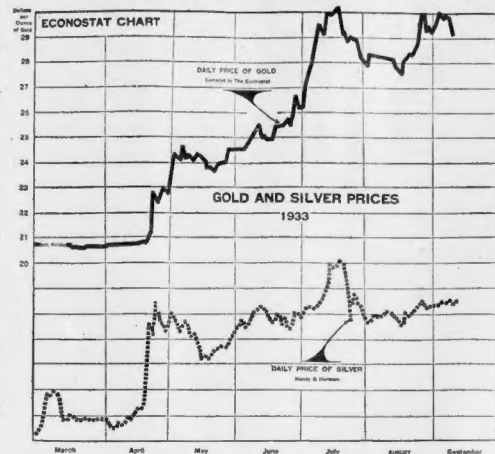

What part will the investment bankers of stock market play in the coming United States recovery? This is the question that is being asked by many of the investment bankers of the country. The answer is that they will have a part in it, and a large one. The investment bankers of the country are the ones who will be in the best position to help the country out of its present financial straits. They are the ones who will be able to raise the money that is needed to get the country back on its feet. They are the ones who will be able to help the government to get its finances in order. They are the ones who will be able to help the business community to get its affairs in order. They are the ones who will be able to help the individual citizen to get his affairs in order. They are the ones who will be able to help the country to get back on its feet.

News World Put

Stocks Upward if of Real Inflation

By WALL ST. SPECTATOR
While there has sprung up in Wall St. a cynical tendency to believe that the fact that the market has advanced is due to the fact that the market is "inflated," the fact is that the market is not inflated. The market is up because it is expected that the government will soon take steps to deal with the inflation problem. The market is up because it is expected that the government will soon take steps to deal with the inflation problem. Gold Is 50 to 1 Above Silver

By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE
Editor, The Economist

The chart is a study of the price of gold in relation to the price of silver. It shows that the price of gold has risen sharply since 1931, while the price of silver has remained relatively stable. This has resulted in a sharp increase in the ratio of gold to silver prices. The reason for this is that the price of gold has risen due to the fact that the government has been buying gold in large quantities. The price of silver has remained stable because the government has not been buying silver in large quantities.

Cotton Business Has

Turn to the North

New England in the past month has made a further substantial increase in its share of cotton manufacturing—partly at the expense of the South—continuing the trend of evidence since the cotton textile crisis began to unfold, whereby the share of the business has shifted to the North, as wage levels and operating schedules of the two major manufacturing regions have brought nearer to equality. As business revival brought a big gain in cotton manufacturing, particularly in the North, and August did from the peak of June, active spindles of the industry scored a net increase of 89,000,000 or 12.7 per cent over the 700,000,000 spindles of the South and August in the South the increase was 290,000,000 or 38.3 per cent. New England's share of increase having been over seven times that of the South, the recent peak of cotton manufacturing activity came in June, with two months of subsequent decline, as orders ran out and as new business was impeded by the sharp advance in prices. August active spindles declined by 1,307,000,000. Of the decline, 1,211,000,000 spindles were accounted for by the South, and 146,000,000 spindles by New England—with states outside these two regions advancing by 18,000,000 spindles.
